The Black United Fund of New Jersey (BUFNJ)

The Black United Fund of New Jersey (BUFNJ)

was founded by the National Black United Fund to help local organizations increase their capacity to provide critically needed services in their communities. BUFNJ assists in the long-term development of community-based organizations and programs that respond to community needs and build self-sufficiency.

The Community Change Action Fund

The Community Change Action Fund was created by the National Black United Fund to support programs addressing youth development intervention strategies and community needs in the areas of education, economic self sufficiency, health and strengthening families. Every dollar that you give to the Community Change Action Fund on or before June 30, 2009 will be matched by a grant supported by the Cultures of Giving Fund, established at the Rockefeller Philanthropy Advisors with major support from W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

BLACK UNITED FUND OF NEW JERSEY

The Black United Fund of New Jersey generates funding and other resources to support youth and family development and achieve positive community change. BUFNJ brings together organizations that support human growth and development, advance community renewal and economic development and promote social change. In addition to financial assistance, BUFNJ provides training, fiscal sponsorship and other technical support to facilitate collaboration, multiply resources and expand organizational reach and effectiveness.

The following list highlights some of the organizations and programs that BUFNJ has supported:
